That perfon that is killed by thunber, 02 lightning, his boby giveth an evill and Arong fulphurous finell, it is of that Arength, that it is norfome to all Creatures : for neither beat no; fowle will come neere it, much leffe febe thereon; that part of the boop, that is Arike, is usually without wound, get often thall you time, that the bones of the part are broken; if there be a wound in the touching thereof you that! and that part where the wound is, farre more colder than any other part of the bong, as Pliny witnesseth lib. 2. chap. 34. the reason is the spirits (being touched most subtilly, by a more subtill and violent winds) are dispersed abroad: this Arange wind the thunder and lightning, alwayes bribeth before it.

Alfo the lightning leaveth behinde a figure of burning, by reason it is never without fire. Soberewith it burneth those things it foucheth, or makes them blacks.

All beattsthat are Crucke with thunder of lightning, fall on the confrary Ave, that they are Arucken on.
